Texas will vote this year 145,000 more votes than she had population forty years ago.

GOVERNMENT HANDS OFF.

There is an element in American politics which is making itself very prominent just now, that demonstrates beyond a vil in every effort made for political preferment the trend of economic thought in this country. It is that element which drawing its inspiration from the Republican party, which was founded on the principles and practices of the old Federalists, look with hopeful expectancy to the government for a cure for every ill, a remedy for every evil. The political prayers of these people are directed to "His Excellency" their secular songs are chorused with "Be it enacted. The charm attached to political preferment, to official patronage lures the demagogue and the political rostrum is worn slick by a class of men who having failed to obtain a decent livelihood in business or the professions seek to prey upon the discontent of the masses. Nowhere in this country is this spirit more rampant than in Texas at the present time, Texas being intensely Democratic in a partisan sense, the addition to our population for years has, without scarcely an exception, served to swell our Democratic majority. The newcomers, though many of them entertaining ideas directly opposite to fundamental Democratic principles, join our party organization just because there is no hope of political success outside of it. This heretical concomitant by persistent effort succeeded two years ago in working up such a feeling of sympathy among their neighbors as to win partial success at least, and in the election of Hogg and the adoption of the commission amendment they claimed complete victory. In this view Governor Hogg has shown individual concurrence, in that he subscribed to their principles and adopted their policy in his recommendations to the legislature viz: Demanding a commission with absolute power over the railroads, recommending and signing an alien land law that had for its purpose absolute prohibition of foreign capital, and the investment of the sacred school fund in the bonds of Texas railroad which were to be controlled absolutely by the commission, which commission was to be appointed by the governor. Governor Hogg's complete surrender to this socialistic element is what has driven thousands of Democrats to the support of Judge Clark. No one will accuse Hogg of not being a Democrat in a partisan sense. He has always supported the Democratic ticket, but in a moment of awe produced by the clamor of a class composed principally of men who were never in sympathy with Democracy he subscribed to their creed and thereby the Democratic label has been attached. It is against the heresies which thus crept in to the party and are now championed by Governor Hogg that Judge Clark and his friends are battling, and as this question is more prominent in Texas than in any other state so is Judge Clark the champion of true Democracy making the most gallant fight against the socialistic heresy that now threatens our institutions, of any man in the United States today. That he will succeed will not admit of a doubt among those who have an abiding faith in the Democrats of Texas. He believes with all the Unterrified that "that government is best which governs least." He believes that if this people are to be free and prosperous they must be untrammelled by governmental restrictions in all their legitimate endeavors. No hindrance must delay the further development of our great state, but her resources must be left unencumbered by any vicious laws that would drive away invest-

JUDGE CLARK'S APPOINTMENTS.

Farmersville, Friday, April 22.
Belton, Tuesday, April 26.
Bryan, Friday, April 29.
Calvert, Saturday, April 30.
Cameron, Tuesday, May 3.
Cleburne, Wednesday, May 4.

Other appointments will be announced from time to time. Gov. Hogg is invited to be present at any appointment and participate on equal terms.

There will be some work to do by the Democratic nominee for congress in the old Ninth.

Governor Hogg went through Waco whistling yesterday, and Waco "aint no grave yard either."

Fifty-sixty years ago today Sam Houston licked the stuffing out of old Santa Anna and turned Texas loose.

G. B. Gerald is the man to carry the Democratic banner to victory in the Old Ninth. The Ocalians can't hold him a light.

The Waco Board of Trade has done more work for Waco than most people think. Get together, business men, and see if you cannot do some more good.

While Governor Hogg is speaking today, the Dallas News will be circulating through the audience with George Clark's Dallas speech in it, and everybody will wonder why everything is so quiet.

To Dr. Rankin: If you force the railroad owners to take the paper money to be issued expressly for that purpose, will you provide any means to force other people to take that same money from the railroad men to whom it is paid?

According to Dr. Rankin it is not intended by the Ocalians to confiscate the railroads. They propose to have the government issue 2,000,000,000 of paper money and force the railroad companies to take it for their property.

A great many people who were fascinated by the song of the socialist two years ago, and were lured away from the Democratic faith, will vote for Clark just to avail themselves of the first opportunity to put themselves on record as favoring governmental protection for personal liberty and individual property.

Politics absorbs the attention of nearly everybody now but the business men of Waco must remember that the Waco Board of Trade is still here and must be kept here. It has done a world of good for Waco and will do more. The members, however, had as well meet now and then, and be introduced to each other.

An Open Letter from Lewine Bros.

To the Readers of THE NEWS:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN—We wish to address you through the medium of this paper on questions of business. It has become the custom for people who have goods to sell to advertise their wares and use so much hyperbole and exaggeration in the advertisements that the people no longer believe the full tenor of the words advertised, and when a really good offer is made they are slow to take advantage.

Not so with our EMBROIDERY SALE OF LAST WEEK. Hundreds of people will attest to bargains they actually bought. In view of this fact we will continue our
